Teac always made audio separates -high and low- but seemingly never sold many of any of them. The biggest push was in 1979 with the two Armonia (PA-7 and MA-7), followed throughout the 1980s by many somewhat low-end, ugly and probably rebadged things. But Teac's success in the high-end CD department probably tickled one marketing executive into trying again to go for another high-end amplifier ...
